The relationship between gay celebrities and followers becomes closer than ever before.

QueerPlans offers LGBTQ+ tourists the opportunity to travel throughout Spain with their favourite international personalities for a 7-day action-packed vacation.

As the impact of social media influencers tends to rise up across the globe, the demand of their followers for a chance to meet them in person becomes clear. Pioneer in the market, QueerPlans is a global travel agency based in Spain which provides personalized vacations with LGBTQ+ personalities who will start joining their followers for a unique experience in gay-friendly uber-touristic Spain on a monthly basis starting March 2018.

As of December 2017, more than 30 celebrities have been confirmed, and new names are added every week. Influencers from all fields like Adult Film Industry stars Brent Everett (@brenteverettxxx) or Diego Sans (@diegosans); TV series actor Murray Swanby (@murrayswanbyla); Village People's singer Jim Newman (@jimnewmannyc); London's Aladdin musical star Niko Wirachman (@nikowirachman) or international models like Kevin Benoit (@therealkevinbenoit), Kyle Goffney (@kylegoffney) or Andee Chua (@andecys).

Each trip is limited to one hundred participants from all over the world willing to meet their idols, make friends, have fun, party together or find a partner in the vacations of their lifetime. Residents in Spain will be able to purchase passes for individual events or season passes for all trips in the year not including accommodation.

According to Vasco Araújo, company's PR, "QueerPlans is a unique ground-breaking platform that surpasses the digital barriers of meeting the LGBTQ+ personalities we all admire. Meeting your idols never got easier".

Monthly trips begin in March 2018 to Madrid, with more destinations being added in the future. All trips will have specific activities for every LGBTQ+ niche including jocks, BDSM, bears, drag queen superstars or twinks and daddies, with all of them featuring several international celebrities for fans to meet.

The trips are open to everyone. Whatever their interests, age or body types are; solo travellers or not, followers will meet and share the trip with the guys they like, as there will be online chat groups for participants to get to know each other and plan activities together before they set off on their travels.

There's also the option to take part in a room match program, where solo travellers can arrange to share a room with someone they like, saving money and making friends.

Trips are all-inclusive, and can be customized with the endless activities aimed at the gay and general public available in the uber-touristic sunny Spain, always led by the expert personnel of the company.

The vacations have been adapted to all pockets, ranging from the budget packages with great discounts for early-bookers up to the Luxury-VIP packages easily crossing the 5 digits barrier.

QueerPlans always gives away a free place in each trip and items from its own sports and summer clothing line among active followers on its social media channels @QueerPlans on Instagram, Twitter and Facebook.

With QueerPlans, the LGBTQ+ audience has a new exclusive way to travel that materializes the relationship between celebrities and their followers.

Press:

QueerPlans will issue free press passes to most of the main events. Media can request passes for their journalists through this email address:
